Welcome, Stranger?

Put yourself in the place of a stranger at Clarke. What would be your reaction as you walked into the office of the residence hall or down the main corridor of the house and a lone light bulb the administration building?

The furniture in the drawing room bluish glow. Suddenly a voice or the bulletin boards in the ad building says, "This is Channel Five." would probably attract your attention first. But before long you'd be interested sion! in the girls; you'd be watching what television is still a subject of they were doing.

You'd be able to observe the buzz of the hill who were gathered at activity on the stairs and in the halls the between classes—the pleasant sense of thought of TV. confusion when everyone has some place don't want TV because we have to go and seems to be enjoying it. But enough fun without it. Televinotice the confusion outside the dining sion is the end of all good conhall or outside the chapel before Bene- versation and creative enjoydiction. That's a different kind of buzz, ment. Personally, I'm not ina disturbing and thoughtless kind. Imagine the shock, if you met such a barrage of gleeful voices for the first time.

If you were a visitor walking up the front steps of the residence hall, the smiles of girls who might be waiting for a bus would make you feel welcome. But you would get just the opposite idea if, as the bus rounded the corner, you'd hear a delicate blast of, "H-old the bu-s!" from a girl in one of the cen- examination periods. ter wing windows.

You wouldn't know about the quiet hours in the res hall and you might have the misfortune of coming about noon and getting the impression that the girls always travel in running swarms and are followed by echoes of childish

Bill Moore, Loras.

"Television keeps the family at home. It has a good effect on younger children but also interferes with their home work. I think it will lose popularity in the future, although the family may support it."

Hettie Gilmore, Clarke.

"Television has had no direct effect on me. I think it's a marvelous boon to home entertainment. However, I don't think it will overshadow any other means of communication such as radio and theater but maybe that's because it's still in the embryonic stage.

Bill Ward, Loras.

"I think it's a 'party-pooper and kills conversation at any kind of party. It's not good for children because they lose imagination for play, and depend on TV for entertainment. The future may bring better programs like short story presentations. If color comes in it will be a good attraction."

Kay Culhane, Clarke. "Television is both educational and entertaining and brings us up to the front in the news of the day. It would be wonderful to have a set at Clarke. I think there'll soon be one in every home in the nation." Marion Bartels, Clarke.

"TV has kept me home evenings, given me bad eyes, and I've lost sleep. It's good, it's wonderful and it's here to stay. It should become one of the greatest educational mediums in the world."

Ed Mahn, Loras.

"TV takes away from conver. sation in the household. The good programs are few and far between-you can't be choosy in what you want to see. It is good, though, for educational purposes."

Jim Whalen, Loras.

"It's here to stay. It's greatest advantage lies in on-the-spot news reporting, not entertainment, as recently shown in the MacArthur homecoming. It has unlimited possibilities for the future in education, entertainment, and news reporting."

instead of a coke machine? Frustrated Clarkites wondered this the local chairman of the auditions last Tuesday night. They knew the machine wasn't empty, and which will run from May 7 to May 16. they had trustingly put their nickels into the proper slot, but no coke bottle popped out. Victim after victim mourned the loss of fessor of piano and music theory at her cherished nickel, and pounded and rattled the recalcitrant Howard Payne college, Brownwood, machine, but to no avail. Rosemarie Van Dyck all but wept as Texas. Mrs. Garrett is a graduate with she told of feeding not one, but four nickels to the crafty mechanism before she finally lost faith in Coca Cola, Inc. See below for a further and happier account of that night's soul-stirring battle for a bottle.

with the second installment of our soft-drink saga. Not long after the last thirst-parched nickel-loser had stamped back to her room, Jackie Matkey went down for a coke, blissfully unaware of the machine's utter disregard for American cash. It apparently decided to be a little more cooperative with Jackie, because when she put in her nickel, the coin obligingly popped out again, but still no coke appeared. Some future Einstein had once told Jackie that if a coin were moistened it would work in vending machines. So Jackie gave the nickel a dainty lick or two with her tongue, then put it again in the slot. Crash, clank!-hooray! The machine utterly capitulated. Out came the coke bottle-plus a quarter, two nickels, and a dime! Any Clarkite who underestimates the power of a woman's tongue had better change her mind, or Jackie will be "minding" her change.
